JUDGE GARNER VISITS HONDO.

Hon. John N. Garner, Congressman from the 15th Congressional district of Texas, accompanied by Harry L. Sexton, Minority Clerk in the House of Representatives, visited Hondo Monday on business and the Judge spent some time mingling with his friends.

With the exception of that sedateness that comes with the transformation of one's hair from red to white, the years have dealt lightly with the Judge and he is the same now, though the nestor of his party in congress, as he was when the district first honored him. Because of his vast experience and his seniority in congress his position in that body is a most advantageous one and one that enables him to be of great usefulness. He enjoys, along with his leadership of the party in the House, the confidence and friendship of the leaders of the majority party to a degree that seldom comes to any member of a minority party.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By Edson R. Waite, Shawnee, Oklahoma

THAT advertising is a trade getter and a trade builder. Build your business by advertising!

THAT the best sellers are always advertised; that is why people read the ads before they buy.

THAT constant advertising creates an ever-increasing demand. THAT forward looking merchants recognize the demand for quality merchandise and keep a standard of quality goods that is the best, and then they ADVERTISE!

THAT they can supply the best on the market at all times. THAT the old saying "the best is none too good" is fully recognized by the up-to-date merchant. It is as true today as it always was, and will remain true forever.

WHEN YOU FIND WELL-ADVERTISED MERCHANDISE YOU FIND MERCHANDISE THAT IS ALREADY IN DEMAND, AND THE DEMAND IS BEING INCREASED BY ADVERTISING.

Judge Garner will be a candidate to succeed himself next year and the 15th district owes it to itself, to the state and to the Democratic party to see that he is triumphantly re-elected.

The jury returned a verdict of not guilty.

TEXAS AND TEXANS.

By Will H. Mayes Texas Rural Routes

Texas is now fairly well covered with rural mail routes, there now being 2,194 routes in the state serving 1,209,000 persons. The cost of this service is $10.25 a year for each family, which is small when it is considered that Texas is yet so poorly covered by good roads.

There is nothing that has contributed more to rural life than the improved mail service unless it is the improved roads that have made the mail service possible.

The annual salary of Texas rural carriers averages $1,227, exclusive of the allowance for equipment maintenance, or about $160 a month, which is enough to secure good service "with a smile."

When it is considered that most of the State highways in Texas are comparatively new, their maintenance appears to be rather expensive. The highway department appropriates $8,403,930 for the maintenance of 18,000 miles of road, or nearly $500 a mile a year. However, this amount takes care of contingencies such as flood damages to roads and bridges.

An argument advanced by the proponents of a State bond issue of considerable size is that the sooner permanent State highways are built just that much sooner will maintenance costs decrease.

Prison Commission Tours

Eleven members of the Texas Prison Commission, created by the last legislature, are away on a visit to a score or more of northern and eastern prisons, accompanied by an architect and a secretary. The tour will last a month and at its end the commission expects to be informed as to the most modern methods in prison management.

While such a jaunt seems expensive, if it only leads to the right improvement of the Texas prison system and to lessening the operating cost to taxpayers, the trip will be worth many times its cost.

The reduction of the cost of operating the penitentiary, while at the same time making prison life more tolerable for convicts, is one of the greatest economic and humanitarian problems with which the State has to deal.

Brazos County Roads

Brazos county voters are to vote on the issuance of a $1,250,000 road bond issue, with which it is proposed to liquidate a half million dollars in bonds and build State roads intersecting the county, and numerous laterals leading to these State highways. People who have occasion to travel in Brazos county will readily agree that the roads are needed.

Orient Extension

The hopes of the people of a vast section of West Texas will be realized sooner than some have expected in recent years if the Santa Fe makes good its proposal to complete the Orient line to Christoval by early September and to Sonora by the first of the year. The work, however, has reached the stage where there is every reason to believe this will be done.

Tomato Tariff

Commercial organizations of the lower Rio Grande Valley are protesting the action of some of the commercial bodies in other parts of the State in opposing the proposed tariff of tomatoes. They claim that if the tariff is increased, it would mean $10,000,000 additional revenue to the Valley each year. It has not been long since the humble tomato was regarded as rank poison. It may yet become the chief source of Texas prosperity. Who knows?

The Milk Industry

To whatever proportions the tomato industry may grow it will likely find a rival for supremacy in the milk cow. Dairy products plants of first 1929, but they will be required to pay tuition at the rate of two dollars per month. Students who are seven by September first, 1929, are in free school age and will not be charged. In case there are too many desiring to take advantage of the reduced age limit, those who are youngest will be cut off until the number is small enough to be taken care of.

all kinds are increasing rapidly in all parts of Texas, and farmers are finding difficulty in getting enough cows to supply the demand for milk and cream. While the milk plants are not showing extraordinary profits, they are proving a boon to farmers by keeping them supplied with ready cash throughout the year.

In Southeast Kansas the bankers have agreed to put up a million dollar fund to be loaned to dairymen for the dairy industry, and they not only expect to get back their money with interest, but to increase their deposits largely. Something of the kind may have to be done in Texas.

Lockhart Creamery

The Lockhart Creamery, one of the many coming concerns of the kind, capitalized at $25,000, and owned in small amounts by local people, has recently held its annual meeting, and is highly pleased with itself. One reason is that it has paid farmers $200 a day for milk and is seeing the milk herd of the district much increased and improved.

Rockdale's Lights

Rockdale is putting in a system of incandescent street lights under the outer edge of the awnings of business houses. Most towns of the size are lighted in that way, and it creates a most favorable impression on both home folks and travelers. There is something about a well-lighted place that creates a home-town pride, and in this day of general use of electricity the unlighted town has a neglected and forbidding appearance.

Clay Products Plants

Natalia, Medina County, is to have a $146,000 clay products plant to specialize in tiles. Much of the Texas soil is adapted not only to the making of tiles and fine brick, but to a high class of ceramics equalling the best pottery of the country. Some day Texas will become famous for its pottery, although as yet but little is produced except the coarsest of the clay products.

Postoffice Receipts Increase

The Pampa Times is correct in its statement that the increase in postal receipts is one of the best indications of the growth of a town. The paper quotes figures to show that postal receipts there have jumped more than one-third over the corresponding periods of last year, from which one can conclude either that Pampa is growing very rapidly or that the people who are there are unusually prosperous and using the mails more than ever. Doubtless both of these conditions exist, for they usually go together.

Building Associations

Building and loan association assets in Texas increased more than $20,000,000 last year, bringing the total to $112,900,000. These associations are now under the supervision of the State banking commission, and will get the same close supervision given to State banks. The result of this, the law for which has only lately become effective, will likely be to increase assets of the associations even more rapidly.

Llano's Hotel Leases

You need not try to lease the new hotel at Llano, for it has been leased before it is completed, but along in September you can be assured of a good room "with all modern conveniences" when you go to Llano. The hotel business in Texas is so good that whenever and wherever a new hotel is to be built there are dozens of hotel proprietors anxious to secure long-term leases.

August Newspaper Business

It used to be that August was considered a dull month in the newspaper business, but evidently August, 1929, is not, for the papers, large and small, are nearly all overloaded with advertising and many are getting out "special editions" that show the great prosperity of their sections. Texas is getting ready for a great fall business. If your town isn't, there must be something wrong with it.

Caleb had a vision of a noisy studio gathering. He was not in the humor for such a celebration, not even for the news that the artist's wife suggested would be his reward.

"I'm afraid—" he commenced slowly. She broke in.

"There is nothing to be afraid of," she laughed. "It isn't that kind of a celebration. You and I and Carkey will go back to the studio as soon as it is too dark to sell any more pictures. Carkey won't exhibit under artificial light, you know. We shall bear with us luxuries, lychees, alligator pears, mushrooms, preserved ginger and other more substantial things. Carkey will cook. I thought I could, before I married him, but I discovered my mistake. Therefore, on special occasions, Carkey plays chef. You can stay all night or leave for your old gravel beds. We live across the bay, you know or you should know. Coming? You'll be sorry if you don't. There will be just—us." She emphasized the last word a trifle and stood looking at Caleb with her hands and arms a little extended in an invitation that was irresistible in its genuineness.

"I'm Afraid," He Commenced Slowly.

"I'll come," said Caleb. "If—"

"No ifs. You and I will go a-ma-king. Come on."

"Not until I've bought this picture. I am going to take it along with me. It grips me, aside from the painting of it. What does 'La Tenaya' mean?"

"The Sink. As applied to a desert cistern, natural or otherwise," she answered. "It is in your line, isn't it? But I'm glad you chose it. It is my favorite and one of Carkey's."

Presently Caleb and Mrs. Carquinez did their marketing from the cab that Caleb chartered, through the markets and up Chinatown. Caleb bought some masses of iris for his share in the feast and then, on their way back to the studio, he halted the machine outside the most famous of Golden's stores, Le Blanc's.

"How old is the kiddy, Mrs. Carquinez?" he asked. "You told me there was one, at Vedder's. A girl. How old?"

"She is not included in these celebrations, Mr. Warner. Please don't—"

"Please let me, Mrs. Carquinez, I've been cooped up for months with out blowing myself for a penny. This is my affair. You are not even to come in. I am going to choose it myself."

She laughed while Caleb entered and was whisked up to the floor consecrated to children's toys. He simplified matters and dodged his own ignorance by demanding the most elaborate doll on the floor. Mrs. Carquinez said nothing much, affecting an air of disapproval, tempered by the look in her eyes, though she did exclaim at the size of the box.

"My child is only of ordinary dimensions, Mr. Warner. Have you tried to present her with a dancing partner of her own size?"

Caleb carried off his canvas triumphantly under his arm, despite Carquinez' plea that it should be framed—at his expense, under his direction. In exchange for the present to his child.

The studio proper occupied all the level ground, a great room with the big north light at one end, a fireplace at the other. There was a fire in the hearth, glowing logs on andirons, more for charm than necessary heat. A settle with cushions that picked up the blacks and reds and white of a Navajo rug was empty. A big chair contained a slender figure in black holding a child.

Carquinez had descended to his kitchen with the celebration plunder. Mrs. Carquinez checked Caleb on the studio threshold while he took in the scene. The girl in black was crooning softly.

The child looked up and slid from the cuddly lap with a cry of—

"Madre! Auntie Betty, it's madre!" and came running to halt at the sight of Caleb—a slender elf with brown eyes big with astonishment and shyness and her mother's ash-gold hair entangling fire and lamplight. Behind her Betty Clinton got up and stood looking at Caleb.

The production of the marvelous doll broke all awkwardness of the meeting and, as the child cried out her rapture, Betty and Caleb shook hands.

"He is part of the celebration, Betty," said Mrs. Carquinez. "We sold four canvases and he bought one of them. The best, 'La Tenaya.' Elsie, you haven't thanked Mr. Warner."

"I don't know how," said Elsie precociously. "You are a very nice gentleman to think of me. Did you bring a dolly for Aunt Betty's baby?"

Betty Clinton seemed a little confused and Mrs. Carquinez laughed and changed the subject.

"Has she had her supper, Betty? Then it is bedtime." The child disappeared with Betty.

"She is Elsie's second mother, you see. I told you there would be just 'us,'" said the artist's wife. "Now, then, you and I will transform ourselves into kitchen assistants."

It was a wonderful dinner, served on the studio table. Afterward Mrs. Carquinez sat down to a piano that lurked in a shadowy corner and played sketches of Chopin, giving place to the husband, who produced a guitar and sang "La Paloma."

"His enthusiasm is greater than his musical quality," laughed his wife. "But this is our celebration chant."

And then she went back into the house and, after a little, called Carquinez, leaving the two alone.

"I am glad you came," said Betty. "I have something to say to you. An apology. I tried to write it, but that seemed cowardly. Now I have got my opportunity."

"Mary Morgan came to me," she went on. "She is in Sacramento with an irrigation concern and doing very well. She could not well take the child with her at first and so—she brought it with her when she visited me—Marta is playing foster mother. It is too young for dolls, though."

"You can guess why Mary Morgan came to El Nido. She told me all that you had done for her, and Mr. Cox, and she told me all of the miserable business between her and Baxter, together with how he had misrepresented you and deceived my father. I am sorry. I did doubt much of what he said, but it seemed quite convincing to my father. I am sorry you could not tell that before he went. Will you forgive me?"

"There is nothing to forgive." The gladness in Caleb's voice backed his assertion. "Yet I should like to make one condition—no not a condition," he added, "a favor. If," he hesitated, thinking of her black gown, "if you are not averse to going out, I should like very much to have you come with Carquinez and his wife to the opening of the Caliente works next month."

"I shall be very glad to come. I shall be out of mourning. Dad does not want me to be a recluse. Will that seal our forgiveness?"

She got up, slim in the twilight, and held out her hand. She had spoken in the present tense of her father. Caleb noticed, as if death had not severed the link between them.

"I also am very glad," he said, as he released her fingers.

He set up the unframed canvas that night in his room in the little bungalow set up for his use on the works, and it was the last thing his eyes rested upon before he turned in. Somehow it seemed to epitomize his career—water and desert places. He fancied Betty and himself in such a solitude, preparing the way for the fertility and population that should follow their discovery and development of water. And Betty did not appear entirely as co-worker. He had seen something of the softer side of her that came as a revelation that warmed and thrilled him to the core.

Nor did he forget to acknowledge Mary Morgan's share in all this, giving himself no credit for her straightening out matters with Betty Clinton.

It was a reflex feeling from Cox's magnanimity that had sent Mary Morgan to Betty Clinton more than any desire to show up Baxter. So Caleb fancied, and was grateful. Mrs. Carquinez was another one to come in for an unuttered blessing. The world began to go very well.

CHAPTER XVI

The Opening

There was no doubt, from the very beginning, of the success of the formal opening of the works. The day was perfect and the guests arrived by special train or motor to accord with a program laid out by Cox's secretary, who was a wizard for schedules.

Caleb had secured seats for Betty Clinton and Mr. and Mrs. Carquinez, with whom she arrived, at the side of the table opposite the speakers. He had personally conducted them on the inspection tour and he saw them in their places before he went on to his own.

A table had been set for the foremen and their wives. Maria and Padilla had been sent invitations and they sat with this group, subordinate yet a part of the celebration. Beside Padilla was Evans, the water-diviner, now in general charge of the diverting ponds that extended above the lengths of the filter galleries.

While Caleb had greeted these humble but necessary workers, one of the foremen rose as Betty, with the artist and his wife, was chatting with Evans, to whom she had been introduced at her own request.

"I had to fire that chap, Johnson, yesterday, Mr. Warner," said the man in a low tone. "He showed up drunk and he had a flask of some rotgut in his pocket. He was hanging around this morning and I warned him off. Acted dopey, to me."

It was curious, Caleb thought, that Baxter, if it was Baxter, should have come in at the end of the project he had tried to ruin as an involuntary witness to Caleb's triumph. He had little sympathy left for Baxter, no regret at the end of so one-sided a friendship. The way of the transgressor had to be hard and Baxter had strayed too far and too often beyond the pale not to deserve punishment. The thought of him did not accord with the spirit of the day and he dismissed it with the fact of his discharge.

The guests consisted of the heads of works, visiting engineers, some of whom had come a long way in professional interest, a selected list of stockholders, civic representatives from Oakville—the all-important press, including Vedder, and such wives and relatives of the fairer sex as considered the event worth their presence.

Cox presided and introduced the speakers. When it came to Caleb's turn a storm of applause greeted his rising, somewhat to his embarrassment. He managed a few phrases, accrediting Cox and the company with much of the meed of praise, paying more easily a glowing tribute to Hinckley, who was to follow him, neatly transferring his own burden of diffidence to the engineer. As he bowed to the renewed plaudits that came with the close of his little speech he looked across to where Betty Clinton sat at the extreme end of the opposite benches. Her hands added to the tribute, her face was aglow with enthusiasm.

He saw her eyes widen suddenly, looking beyond him, through the gap between him and Cox, at something that riveted her attention. A touch on his elbow distracted him from the incident. Burns, the superintendent of cement construction, whispered anxiously.

"Feely has just come through Number One flow conduit," he said. "Reports a crack in the roof."

Caleb slid out of his seat and drew the superintendent to one side. "This was startling news. Caleb had prepared all the specifications for the tunnels. The responsibility for their efficiency was all his. If the weight of the fifty feet of gravel threatened the roof of the conduit any disaster, even a temporary delay for repair, would mar the demonstration. It might be kept private but the stigma would rest on Caleb professionally."

"I'll look at it myself," he said. "It may be only superficial. If it seems dangerous, we'll shore with timber immediately and close the conduit. Number Two will have to supply the intake. Where's Feely now?"

"Gone to inspect Number Two."

"Good. Wait for my report, Burns. Feely may be an alarmist, though he was perfectly right to report. Go back to your seat. I'll be here again as soon as I can."

He hurried down the road to the gatehouse as fast as he could go afoot. The cars were parked and he did not want to draw attention to his sudden disappearance, by taking one. If his absence was marked he wished to make it as inconspicuous as possible. Hinckley was talking as he left the bower.

Anxiety deepened as he went, imagination widening the flaw while he rapidly went over the details of reinforcement and the building of the forms, the mixing of the cement. He had followed Hinckley's ancient example and had practically inspected every wheelbarrow load of the stuff, impressing rigidly on all hands the necessity for prime materials and absolute following of the formula. He felt certain his figures, his computations of stress and thrust and resistance were correct, allowing ample margin. Yet—if the tunnel gave way, the glory of his achievement was tarnished.

He did not wait for slicker or rubber boots but went swiftly down the ladders, an electric torch in his pocket. Burns had told him the crack was midway between the filter-gallery gate and the forebay pit. With the beam of the torch boring into the black tunnel he fairly ran through the film of water underfoot, his splashing footfalls resounding in the confined space, his head bowed to avoid the roof, counting his strides to calculate the distance. Three hundred yards in he began to spray the roof with light, going more slowly. Eighty yards further the light betrayed the crack. It extended halfway across the level summit of the top of the conduit and a little way down one of the slopes. At first glimpse it yawned ominously, a black split across the gray circle illumined on the cement.

Caleb thrust the tips of his fingers into it, probing. And sighed with sudden relief. It was shallow and there was no sign of any bulge about it. It was a superficial crack to which any cement face is subject. In the hurry of final preparation, when the form boards had been stripped, it had not been noticed, might not have actually developed until later. The interior surface of the tunnel had not been faced, the grain of the form boards still showed. A board insufficiently soaked before pouring, or with knotted fibers that had resisted the water, might have clung to the cement. There might have happened to be a small streak with too much sand. In that one spot the tamping might have been insufficient. It amounted to nothing as regards the stability of the structure.

But he stayed to make certain, wanting to be satisfied that the rush of water would not enlarge the fissure. Later he would have it filled but, for today, he needed both conduits to make an efficient display.

Suddenly, while he probed, he became aware of water swirling about his ankles, of a hissing noise that rose swiftly to a roar, re-echoing from wall to roof as the water swiftly deepened, eddying above his shoes in a savage rush that tugged and lifted, that threatened his purchase on the slippery floor.

This... answers the question... which is America's finest medium-priced automobile

The Oakland All-American Six was compared with twenty other cars in 873 individual comparisons. Of the 873 points of comparison, Oakland established clear-cut superiority on 451 or 51.37 per cent. The twenty cars combined proved at best to be equal to Oakland on 322 points or 43.50 per cent. Yet thirteen of these cars are higher-priced than the All-American Six... Let us give you complete returns of this analysis. Then you will know that here is America's finest medium-priced automobile.

What these features mean to you

Large piston displacement is needed to develop high power at moderate engine speed.
Moderate engine speed is an important factor in the life of a car.

PISTON DISPLACE- MENT

Fisher bodies are famous for style, luxury and roominess. In addition, they hold such advantages as sturdy hardwood and steel construction, VV windshield, side cowl ventilation and adjustable drivers' seats.

FISHER BODY

How Oakland com- pares with the field

Oakland's 228 cubic inch piston displacement is greater than 12 of the 20 cars in its price field. Of the 8 remaining cars, 7 are higher priced than Oakland.

Only Oakland and two other cars in the field offer bodies by Fisher.
And one of the two is nearly $100 higher in price than Oakland. Of the 18 cars which have less-known bodies, 11 are priced above the All-American Six.

Consider the delivered price as well as the list price when comparing automobile values... Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices include only reasonable charges for handling and for financing when the G. M. A. C. Time Payment Plan is used.

STAGE SCREEN NEWS

THE VAUDEVILLE season has next week in San Antonio, at the Greater Majestic Theatre, where the Keller Sisters and Lynch are heading a bill of five big time vaudeville acts. It marks the passing of the Unit show and the ushering in of "Straight Vaudeville." On the same bill with the Keller Sisters and Lynch, who are renowned as the three most perfectly matched voices on the stage today, and radio stars of WEAF, are such well known vodevillians as Fred Lightner, the comic, assisted by Rozelle; Michael, the boy xylophonist; Eddie and Loretta King, and Probes Frolics, a novelty.

On the screen is the latest Wm.
Fox Movietone production, "Words and Music," a rari, rari, musical comedy, built along the lines of "Good News," but of course, entirely original in theme. "Words and Music" features Lois Moran and a whole host of Broadway musical comedy stars, including the eccentric dancer, "Tom Pa-tricola." Over one hundred girls are in the big ensemble scenes, and seven new musical hits are introduced.

Don Galvan, the Majestic orchestra, Vernon Gayer and other musical and film features complete a great program.

CHAS. RAY, well known star of screen and stage, comes to the Greater Majestic Theatre in San Antonio, for a week's engagement. With him is the inimitable comedian, "Hap" Farnell and Florence. This great show start-Saturday, September 7th.

"THE COCKEYED WORLD," a sequel to "What Price Glory," with Vic McLaglen, and Edmund Lowe, has set a new world record for a single week's business at the Roxy Theatre in New York, where the film grossed $173,000 last week. Martin Quinn, noted critic, said: "The Cock-eyed World," is raw, rough and rowdy, but the funniest film the screen has ever seen." It comes to the Majestic in San Antonio soon.

"EVA CLARK, favorite prima donna of the St. Louis Opera Co., will be seen and heard at the Greater Majestic Theatre next week, where she will headline a wonderful vaudeville bill. This is Miss Clark's first vaudeville appearance in years, and is no doubt one of the real music events of the year.

There can be no true civilization until man is secure in his every personal right. It is to protect man in the enjoyment of his rights against interference by those who would infringe upon those rights that governments are instituted among men.
Therefore, the higher the civilization the greater the personal liberty of the individual—liberty to enjoy the rights that are his. Instead of civilization and personal liberty being strangers, one can not exist without the other. When either fails, might

To Women who drive their own cars

The woman who uses the family motor car to take her husband to work, the children to school, to go marketing, shopping, a-pleasuring—exercises the same care in selecting her car's motor fuel that she exercises in selecting her family's food. Hence her choice of Humble Flash-like Gasoline. Economy and efficiency demand it.

That is why today you see at stations displaying the Humble signs an ever-increasing number of cars—and you will find that most of the drivers are women.
The specifications given below describe the technical make-up of Humble Flashlike Gasoline in everyday terms. It will pay you to study these specifications and make them the basis on which you buy your gasoline.

MEDINA-FRIO LEASING ACTIVE.

Medina and Frio have within the last few months been added to the list of oil counties in the San Antonio territory where oil activities have greatly increased. Other counties that have experienced intense activities in the last few months have been Gonzales, Bexar, Brewster, Kinney, and Comal. The following program committee was appointed: Dr. Hazel Price Taylor, Mrs. Earl Boon, Mrs. E. J. Leinweber assisted by Mrs. Ed. Cameron and Octavia Davis.

Refreshments consisting of milk chocolate ice cream and angel food cake were served to Mesdames R. H. Hudspeth, Earl Boon, E. J. Leinweber, Fletcher Davis, O. B. Taylor, Ed. Cameron, Roland Gaines, Alfred Schweers, Misses Willie D. Fly, Lucille DeMontel and Octavia Davis.

Several thousand acres have been leased within the past few months in Medina and Frio counties and leasing is still very active, especially along the Medina-Frio county lines in the vicinity of Devine and Moore.

It is understood that several large tracts of acreage have been leased in the area by some of the major companies and independent operators to contemplate test wells within the next few weeks.

Logs of wells drilled recently and some drilled a few years ago are said to prove the presence of oil and gas in that area and geologists and operators who have studied the logs of the territory are of the opinion there is a long possibility that oil or gas or probably both will be discovered in the area in the near future.

Strenuous efforts have been made to suppress any news concerning leasing activities in the territory along Medina-Frio county lines. It has been generally known that brokers and operators from Houston, Fort Worth and San Antonio have been busy the past few weeks leasing acreage in that territory.

COURTEOUS TELEPHONE SERVICE.

"Thank You" the courteous phrase has been the telephone operator's for the last few years, now will be augmented by other answers that serve to make contact between operator and subscriber more personal and natural, according to an announcement made today by T. A. Jenson, District Manager of the Northwestern Bell Telephone Company, on the occasion of a visit to Hondo.

"All right, sir," "All right, ma'am," "Yes sir" and "Yes Ma'am" among the new phrases that will be used by the operators here in the future.

"Of course, I expect that 'Thank You' will retain its popularity," said Stevenson, "as it is quite the natural thing to say in most cases, and it no longer will be the stereotyped answer to all subscribers." Mr. Stevenson said that the new phraseology merely is an effort to give patrons a more personal service.

THE GREENE MURDER CASE AT THE TEXAS.

William Powell, who played the role of Philo Vance in "The Canary Murder Case," will again be seen and heard as the intensely fascinating criminologist in Paramount's all talking dramatization of S. S. Van Dine's "The Greene Murder Case," which will be shown at the Texas Theatre in San Antonio all next week starting Saturday.

In many ways "The Greene Murder Case" is considered the most effective of the Van Dine series. Its action has greater sweep, its situations possess the unusual twist, and its solution is as startling as it is logical. As a matter of fact, few murder mystery stories of modern times, so completely grasped the public imagination as did this famous story which has now been made into an exciting and highly dramatic talking picture.

William Powell, of course, is ideally cast as Philo Vance, as audiences know who saw him in this role in "The Canary Murder Case." Suave, debonair, with just a touch of good humor, Powell is always believable and convincing. It is a role played with intelligence and understanding; one of the best Powell has yet given on the talking screen.

Supporting Powell in superb fashion are Jean Arthur, cast as the adopted daughter in the Greene Household, Florence Eldridge as the sophisticated Sibella, and Morgan Farley as Rex, the studious son. Others include Brandon Hurst, E. H. Calvert and Eugene Pallette.

Other features on the Texas program next week include Vic and the Texas Stage Band in the New York Public Stage show "Rainbow Trail," a gorgeous revue of the Golden West, with a cast of Broadway entertainers; Ernest Hauser conducting the Texas Grand Orchestra, and Abel at the organ.

CARD OF THANKS.

Fire destroyed my barn and its contents Thursday afternoon, August 15, and caused me a loss of approximately five or six thousand dollars. It was only through the heroic work of my good friends and neighbors in fighting the flames that my house was saved. I, therefore, take this means of assuring one and all that I find words inadequate to express my thanks and appreciation for the great service you have rendered me and mine, to assure you that it will always be remembered with gratitude, and with the hope that you may be spared such a disaster as I have just suffered, I am,

Gratefully yours,
 ARNOLD WURZBACH.

ANOTHER THIEF ACTIVE.

A disturbance aroused Mr. R. A. Carter Saturday night just in time for him to see a miscreant leave his garage and make a get-away in a car. Inspection disclosed that Mr. Carter's car had been jacked up and one of the wheels removed and taken away.

The next day it was discovered that one of the pumps at the Highway Garage had been tampered with and a few gallons of gas stolen.

On the same night a quantity of lubricating oil was stolen from the Nester garage at D'Hanis.

Of course, it could have been different parties, but the circumstances seem to indicate that it was all done by the same outfit. No arrests have been made.

A delectable course of molded salad, potato chips, saltines, olives, cake and iced tea was served the following guests: Mesdames Oscar Filleman of Luling, Lou Heath, Davis Eddleman, L. J. Brucks, Ed. Cameron, Wood Cameron, Barnitz Carle, Earl O'Neal, Ralph Noonan, Russel Speece, Frank Schweers, Earl Boon, Earl Starnes, Oscar Miller, Walter Rothe, Richard Reiley, Oscar Taylor and Misses Jo and Lillian Brucks.

Mr. and Mrs. John L. Mechler and sons, David and Lawrence, returned Wednesday evening from their trip to the Ozark Mountains in Arkansas. They returned by way of Shreveport, La., and Houston and report an enjoyable vacation. The trip was in the nature of a "going back home" for Mrs. Mechler for it was at the Ozark Sanatorium and St. Joseph's infirmary in Hot Springs that she received her training in nursing.

STRENGTHENING EFFECT REMARKABLE, HE STATES

"The Sargon treatment is simply wonderful for bringing back strength and energy for now, after a few weeks taking it, I feel like a different man entirely."

"On account of my work I was forced to eat and sleep irregularly for a long time with the result that I became very run down and debilitated. Chronic indigestion gradually weakened me and kept me in bad health. I would suffer terrible pains after every meal, no matter how light it was. At night these pains robbed me of sleep and my condition finally got so bad I couldn't even eat an orange or a grape fruit without suffering afterwards. Naturally, I was always tired and listless.

"Then I started Sargon—and commenced to feel better right from the beginning. I now enjoy my food and my digestion is fine. I'm never bothered with stomach trouble and get plenty of good, sound sleep. I feel better and stronger than I have in years—and I'll never be without Sargon again."—E. D. Frank, 1610 20th St., Galveston, Texas.

BOY SCOUT CAMP HAS LARGEST ATTENDANCE IN COUNCIL'S HISTORY

Two hundred and thirty Scouts and twenty-four adults and children registered as part of their reat camp family. Many of these contributed great deal to our camp program and moral, if in no other way, by being present.

The camp was under the leadership of Camp Chairman, V. A. Brown, Mayor of Rocksprings, assisted by President E. K. Fawcett of Del Rio and Scout Executive H. B. Palmer, Camp Director.

Many prominent men of the Area and from other Councils were a part of the camp personnel. Rev. Chas. Dixon, Rev. F. H. Stallknecht and S. L. Worley of the Central Power & Light Co. of Del Rio contributed much to the camp, as did Chaplin John MacWilliams of Fort Clark, Messrs. Richards, Sabinal, Marby Ogle, Anderson; Professor Maddox, Knipp; Wm. Evans and F. M. Getzenauer, Uvalde; Mr. O'Leary and Judge David E. Hume of Eagle Pass; L. Jeffrey, Mr. Ely and Professor Patterson, Carrizo Springs; Phil C. Sage and Rev. Nelson, Hondo; and a number of others too numerous to mention.

Those from out of our Council, whom we owe our thanks to are K. Clapp and four Eagle Scouts from Abbeok, Eagle Scout Manire and his brother from Slaton, Chief White by Lehman, Loyal Valley; Mr. L. C. Ehot, Central Power & Light Safety Expert, San Antonio; L. S. Arkey, Field Executive, San Antonio; and G. W. Simpson, Scout Executive for the Missouri Pacific. Scout Executive Jack Brunberg and eight fine men of the Pecan Valley Area Council, Headquarters Brownwood, passed many tests for boys, and are regular guys. All the above men made valuable contributions to our camp program. An average of 375 visitors came to camp and our evening camp fire programs and life saving demonstrations.

Our last day in camp was featured by the landing of Capt. Robt. C. Murphy and his Pilot, Lieutenant Fowler, on the Boy Scout landing field at about five P. M. They remained for the night as our guests. Capt. Murphy told the Scouts who had over many interesting things about aviation. A Scout Guard of honor was placed about the big Douglas ship during this stay. The Scouts met around the ship Friday evening to hear a dedication talk by Capt. Murphy. On leaving he dropped two messages of greetings from the air to all Scouts in the Area.

Some forty boys received certificates as Second Class, First Class, and Life Scouts, more than fifty-five merit badges were awarded and three Scouts were made Eagle Scouts. Billie Burditt of Leakey and Bruce Ivey of Crystal City are the best kind of boy leaders and are popular and respected Scouts all over the Area.

A fine class of life saver was turned out by Mr. Clapp and his assistants. The details of our daily program will be heralded later. Any verdict of practically every camper was that this is the greatest of all camps.

LIONS LET'S GO TO ALPINE!

Lion Dillon will be ready to go to Alpine August 30 and wants all others to go who are able. If you haven't seen the country around here, it will be worth your trouble to go and see the scenery. We were entertained royally by one of our own home talent. Miss Saathoff and Joe Wilson rendered two vocal selections, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Wilson. A request of several Lions, Miss Saathoff was asked to give us other treat like she has done in the past. She gave us two beautiful selections which everyone enjoyed. The Lions club hate to see school part for then Miss Irene will have to leave for the north where she is teaching violin.

QUIHI NOTES.

"Go to the ant, thou sluggard; consider her ways, and be wise." Prov. 6, 6.

No Sunday school nor divine service will be held in Bethlehem Lutheran church Sunday.

The regular divine service, due to be held in St. John's Lutheran church of New Fountain Sunday forenoon will not be held because all members and friends are invited to come to Hondo and join in the three services there.

As announced in all Lutheran churches of Medina County last Sunday, the fourth centennial of the publication of Dr. Martin Luther's Catechism will be celebrated in Hondo Sunday. Three services will be held in the auditorium of the Hondo High School. The service at 10 o'clock A. M. will be in German; Rev. W. Kralik of Castroville will be the speaker. In the afternoon the English service begins at 3 o'clock. The speaker on this occasion will be the President of the Lutheran College at Seguin, Rev. W. Kraushaar. The third service also in English will begin at 8 P. M. and the speaker will be the Rev. Prof. E. J. Braulick. The church choirs of Castroville, Quihi, Hondo and Knippa will be present and will add interest and beauty to the services. The Quihi church choir is scheduled to sing two selections in the afternoon service. All are kindly requested to bring their lunches with them and go to the Chamber of Commerce Rooms to eat the same. The Ladies' Aid Society of Hondo has made ample arrangement at these rooms for free hot coffee, ice water, etc. So let everybody come and be assured that they are welcome and will hear much that is interesting and profitable about the first and greatest book of modern civilization.

The lawn social given by the Quihi Luther League last Saturday was a real success in every particular. The weather and road conditions were fine and the attendance large. Friends and neighbors from practically every part of the county were present and greatly enjoyed the splendid numbers of the program and the social concomitant pleasures afforded on such an occasion in the meeting of dear old friends and neighbors. All numbers of the program—some of them quite classic—were rendered excellently. Mrs. Henry Schuehle presided at the piano in her wonted efficient manner and Mr. Edwin Grell swung the baton for the church choir. Both Rev Heineke and Supt. Saathoff, the speakers, had something worth while to say and said it in a manner that made the great audience listen to them with marked attention and doubtless were all well rewarded for having turned out.

PICNIC.

The Epworth League of the Methodist Church entertained with a picnic on Wednesday, August 14, at Castroville. All who went met at the home of Thelma Wilson at 6:30 P. M. and by 7:00 they reached Castroville where some enjoyed a good swim, while some went boat riding and others sat on the bank and watched the fun.

About 8:30 everyone partook of sandwiches, potato chips, olives, pickles, fruit, cake and punch; after which they started home. They all reported a most enjoyable time.

$500 REWARD.

We, the undersigned, will pay the above reward for the arrest and conviction or information leading to the arrest and conviction of any person guilty of theft of goats, sheep or cattle from any of our ranches.

Bishop Spalding says: "A man's daily reading, like his habitual conversation, is a symbol of his life and character." By reading the books in a man's library or the magazines which lie on the center table, the character of the household can be found. Can a man's character be on a high level if he reads only trashy literature? Can the atmosphere of the home be considered praiseworthy if the children only read silly love and suggestive stories? Can the children be exemplary if they are allowed to read books or magazines which laugh at religion, glorify divorce and disapprove of home life? Our young people are not what they should be but can it be otherwise if they are permitted to read books written by depraved men and women? Our country would be the winner if tons of literature read by young people were reduced to ashes.

POULTRY RAISING RESTORES HEALTH TO OIL WELL DRILLER.

By Mrs. Irvin Pickle.

L. B. Grow of Smith County, Texas, had been an oil well driller for twenty-five years. This strenuous life was too much for his health. He became a physical wreck and was hardly able to walk. His doctor advised him to give up oil work and go to the country to live a quiet life and regain his health.

Of course he must have something to do to employ his time, his mind, and to furnish him a living. He consulted the county agent who advised him to try poultry raising and gardening. That was about four years ago. He bought a farm of sixty-five acres and sixty white leghorn hens. His flock now numbers five hundred or more and he plans to have at least one thousand hens for next year. He raises only the pure bred Tancard strain of White Leghorns and thinks there is no better bird to be found.

This year 300 cockerels were sold when they weighed from 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 pounds, at 35 cents per pound. The flock is culled closely and all hens over three years old are sold for eating except a few that are kept for breeders.

By far the best profit on the Grow farm is from the sale of eggs. Mr. Grow makes from $125 to $140 per month from the sale of eggs. This in addition to what the family uses. Mr. Grow has a 1000 egg capacity incubator, a brooder house 12x24, and two laying and roosting houses each 16x32. For next year he plans to increase his flock, do custom hatching, and make more improvements in all his equipment. He is now building new battery brooders and getting ready to have everything electric.

Mr. Grow evidently believes that "an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." The houses and other equipment are kept sprayed with disinfectants and germicides often enough to keep them in a sanitary condition.

Commercial feeds are used mostly. They are safer and more economical for the beginner according to Mr. Grow. He thinks an experienced poultry raiser might mix his own feeds to some advantage, but thinks it not the safest nor the most economical for the beginner.

Besides his poultry raising, Mr. Grow keeps two Jersey cows and raises some corn and cotton on his 65-acre farm. This year he had 15 acres in cotton and 40 in corn. The two cows average from 3 1/2 to 4 gallons of milk per day. This makes an ample supply for family use with some butter and milk to sell.

Mr. Grow has regained his health and seems to be thoroughly in love with farm life. On account of foot trouble he has all his planting and cultivating plows arranged so that he can ride. He frequently consults his county agent and by following his advice has been able to have more money at the end of each year than he had when he was in the oil fields and has health, freedom, and independence that he never enjoyed before.

WOULD BOOST THE USE OF COTTON.

By Mrs. L. E. Armour.

I am glad that cottonburg is growing to be popular for so many uses. One good thing about its popularity is that it increases use of cotton and the more cotton we use the greater the demand and price.

I know of no more durable material than cottonburg and have seen articles made from it that surprised me in their attractiveness. I have a table cover made from a left-over scrap from cotton sack time. It is remounted with red thread and has a colorful spray of embroidery in each corner. It resembles coarse linen and is more beautiful than I can express. The natural unbleached color renders it easy to work into attractive articles. Beautiful and durable dresser scarfs may be made of it, using embroidery or coils around as trimming. Such scarfs are ideal for living-room use where so much wear results, they do not "show dirt" so may be used longer without washing, are easily laundered and after repeated laundering are bleached snow-white after which they look like new and last as long as new ones of other material.

I am thinking strongly of an orenburg bed spread. Of course it would be heavy to handle when in wash but could be used so long before washing that after all, the labor would not be more than it required for other easily soiled, lighter weight material.

Covers for mattresses that form lasting protection, all kinds of bags—laundry, shoes, etc., towels for everyday use that after the new is "broken" by washing are soft and easily laundered are ready absorbers of water, all may be made of orenburg. Draperies for doors, either plain, decorated or dyed is another good use for this durable material. While heavy in weight it absorbs dye readily and so may be made any color desired.

It is cheaper than feather-proof bed-clothing and the better grades make satisfactory ticking for beds and pillows. If more color is desired it may be dyed and still be less expensive than regular ticking. Buying any goods in bolts reduces the price per yard so when we buy cotton ticking let's buy in bolts and convert the scraps into attractive articles for our homes. In fact, let's boost the use of cotton in every possible way. As growers of cotton it is our duty and this is one way that duty may be made a pleasure.
